

Manage Email Notifications for Connection Errors

Last Modified on 08/25/2026 9:08 am EDT

When a sync error occurs on a connection, Exalate can email you about it. This is controlled per connection, and only for your own account.

Turn on error notifications

1. On the required connection, click the three-dot menu and navigate to Connection Properties.
2. Under Error notifications, turn on Enable error notification.

Alerts are sent to the email address on your account. You can only manage notifications for yourself — not for other users on the connection.

New connections

When you create a connection, error notifications are enabled by default for you as the creator.
